Dear Friends,

Please thank Mayor JoAnne Bush for her leadership and work as president of the Arkansas Municipal League this past year. And thank you for the honor of serving as president this year. In the spirit that led each of us to serve our communities, I pledge my best efforts on behalf of the League and our 500 member cities. Do not hesitate to offer suggestions anytime.

Wasn't the 75th Convention wonderful? The video of our 75-year history was outstanding! It illustrated that some city requests never change. The record attendance suggests that more city leaders are recognizing the value of the League connection for learning and sharing. A special part of the Convention was surprising Don Zimmerman and celebrating his 35 years as executive director. Thank you, Don!

The staff continually does an excellent job organizing our annual Conventions. Thank them for their good efforts. The concurrent sessions contained helpful information for everyone. In many cases, it was difficult to choose between them. Fortunately, Ken Wasson stays "plugged in" to the interest levels and works hard to reschedule the most popular topics at later Conventions.

Arkansas is at a historic double turning point. In the short term, the national financial downturn has affected everyone. Fortunately there are indicators suggesting the turnaround may be close. In the longer term, broad community and economic development is important to Arkansas cities and is of particular interest to all of us.

As you recall, at the Convention I touched on the link between economic development and education. They are important to the survival and growth of our cities and towns. In some cities across the nation, mayors are promoting early reading skills and parental involvement to help prepare children for school.

Gov. Beebe's Strategic Economic Development Plan outlines several strategies, one of which is regional cooperation to better compete globally for jobs and business. Working together, Arkansas cities can be more competitive. In a task force meeting last year, a suggestion was offered that we should set aside Friday night rivalries and work together to retain, create and recruit jobs within our individual regions. The plan is a valuable reference and copies are available on the Arkansas Economic Development Commission's Web site, ArkansasEDC.com.

The Commission is following the governor's lead in emphasizing regional economic cooperation. As mentioned at the closing Convention luncheon, if any group of community leaders is interested in a detailed discussion about the AEDC plans, contact Don or me. We will be happy to identify and coordinate the appropriate state resources for a regional meeting.

At 75 years, the Arkansas Municipal League is stronger than ever and one of the best in the nation. The League is uniquely organized to help everyone learn and share what is needed to continue to build great cities and in turn build a great state.

I look forward to working with each of you as we move through changing times. Call on me anytime.

75th Convention breaks records

By Andrew Morgan, League staff

HOT SPRINGS—With the Arkansas Municipal League celebrating its landmark 75th anniversary, it's only fitting that the 2009 Convention, held June 17-19 in Hot Springs, should break attendance records. Overall attendance at the 75th Convention hit 1,402, beating the previous record of 1,313 set in 2003 by nearly 100.

With a total of 90 companies exhibiting, the Hot Springs Convention Center's exhibit hall also saw record numbers. The previous record was set in 2008 with 86 exhibitors.

Participation by Arkansas's cities and towns and their leaders was strong at the 75th Convention, with 737 delegates representing 203 municipalities coming together to prepare for the challenges of the year ahead.

In addition to the usual full schedule of general sessions, business meetings, workshops and award presentations, the League celebrated its 75th year of serving the state's cities and towns with friends new and old at a special June 18 Past Presidents' Luncheon, which included 23 past presidents as guests of honor. The League also premiered a video history of its first 75 years, complete with entertaining reenactments of the organization's earliest days. The video will soon be available for viewing on the League's Web site, www.arml.org.

At the luncheon attendees received copies of the newly published history of the League, Great Cities: A History of the Arkansas Municipal League and its Support of Arkansas Cities and Towns. The book, produced by League staff, follows the evolution of the organization and its member cities and towns from 1934 to the present. The establishment of municipal courts in the late 1930s, the long fight for tort immunity, the granting of the local sales tax option in 1981, and 2007's increase in state turnback after 25 years of stagnation are just a few of the events covered in Great Cities. Copies of the book are available from the League.

The League also honored Executive Director Don Zimmerman during the Convention for his 35 years of leadership. The League and the cities and towns of Arkansas presented Zimmerman with a plaque and showed another video chronicling his longtime and continuing service to Arkansas municipipalities. Zimmerman is the longest-serving state municipal league director in the nation. Host city Hot Springs even declared June 18, 2009, "Don Zimmerman Day."

Twenty-three past League presidents attended the 75th Convention. "Casey" Laman, Jim Shirrell, Marilyn Johnson Heifner, Joann Smith and Jim Dailey.

Legislation affecting municipalities tops Convention agenda

Changes in state law dominated much of the discussion during general sessions at the League's 75th Convention, as the League and state leaders covered how legislation passed during the 87th General Assembly of the Arkansas Legislature affects cities and towns. Gov. Mike Beebe speaking June 18 during the first general session of the Convention opened with words of praise for the legislators, calling them "true public servants." We've seen much progress in recent years as a result of their hard work, he said.

Beebe

In his brief pep talk, Beebe encouraged city and town leaders to focus on the positive changes across the state rather than wallow in the negative.

"Thank God for Mississippi?" Beebe asked, quoting the popular adage. "Quit saying it!"

Arkansas is one of only seven states in the nation without a budget deficit, Beebe cited as just one example of the state's progress.

"Arnold [Schwarzenegger] wants to model California after us," he said, noting that the state has a $42 billion deficit while Arkansas has a surplus.

Several Arkansas legislators who supported the League's legislative package were on hand to discuss specific legislation affecting municipalities. Sen. Jim Luker sponsored Act 362, which streamlined procedures for the recall of municipal officials serving four-year terms. Luker also sponsored Act 488, which aims to increase accountability of courts in small cities that might be otherwise tempted to write moving violation citations without proper documentation.

As a response to the jail funding crisis affecting some cities and counties, Rep. Barry Hyde sponsored Act 362, which allows for increases in court fines and misdemeanor fines—stagnant now for many years—to defray city or county jail expenses.

"Act 209 makes a big impact on these funding problems if cities and counties choose to use it," Hyde said.

Act 1448 by Rep. Rick Green strengthens existing law that regulates municipal contracts with ambulance services. The legislation was inspired, Green said, by a recent situation in Van Buren wherein the city could not enforce its ambulance contract, which compromised public safety.

Act 1313, sponsored by Rep. Johnnie Roebuck, increases death benefits for police and firefighters killed in the line of duty. Death benefits hadn't been changed since 1985.

"It's an Act we hope we will never have to use," Roebuck said.

The legislation also provides for an officer to designate the beneficiary. The choice must be reviewed annually or it reverts to the default beneficiary list.

The League's legislative package was largely successful during the 87th General Assembly, Zimmerman said. He credited many legislators for their support of the program. Rep. Tommy Baker of Osceola, who as chair of the City, County and Local Affairs Committee saw to it that no bill made it out of his committee that was detrimental to cities and towns, was especially helpful, he said. Baker, who is a former Osceola alderman and a former League president, was named—along with Rep. Bruce Maloch—as the League's Person of the Year for his efforts.

The League's "vetting process" for legislation, in which potential bills pass from members through the League's advisory committees and the Executive Committee for approval, works well, Zimmerman said, and resulted in many helpful new laws and amendments during the 2009 session. Among them are:

- Act 143 by Rep. John Woods, which allows cities and towns to secure priority liens to clean up properties;
- Act 144 by Rep. George Overbey Jr., which clarifies that retirement benefits for mayors in cities of the second class may be prescribed by their city councils;
- Act 195 by Rep. Woods, which allows municipalities to request the termination of water service by a rural water authority serving residents if solid waste payments are delinquent;
- Act 340 by Rep. Robert Moore, which makes cities and towns eligible to receive surplus campaign funds; and
- Acts 398 and 411 by Rep. Overbey, which clarify to authority of a district court and the ability for cities and towns to receive fine revenue in municipalities in which the court does not sit.

The long battle to fund a much-needed statewide trauma system also reached a favorable conclusion during the 87th General Assembly. Rep. Gregg Reep, former Warren mayor and a League past president, sponsored Act 180, which increased state tobacco taxes to fund the trauma system and other health programs. This funding solution should be serving the state well soon, Zimmerman said.

Rep. Maloch sponsored Act 883, which appropriated an additional $3 million—$2.5 million of which will be actually funded—in turnback for municipalities from the state's General Improvement Fund. The legislation secured Maloch as co-recipient of the League's 2009 Person of the Year.

New Policies and Goals set

The Resolutions Committee met twice at the 75th Convention to discuss and approve the package that will be the League's Policies and Goals 2009-2010 as voted on by the Convention at the annual business meeting.

The majority of the resolutions passed are amendments and clarifications to the League's existing policies and goals. They include amendments that broaden the League's stance opposing exemptions to and rebates from local sales taxes, strengthening local control over public employee benefits, requesting adequate funding for the State Aid Street System, and increased local control over land use issues. The Convention voted to renew its resolution in support of an amendment in state law to increase the percentage of the premium tax allocated to the Arkansas Local Police and Fire Retirement System (LOPFI) to ensure a more equitable distribution to cities and towns.

The Convention voted to eliminate the League's engineering service, which has been little used in recent years, and added two new services to its policies and goals, the League's new safety and wellness programs.

The Convention passed a new resolution offering support to the proposed amendment to the Arkansas Constitution to eliminate limits on interest rates for government bonds and loans. Doing so will improve financing options for cities and towns trying to fund economic development projects. The League had worked during the 87th General Assembly to pass legislation to that effect. The Legislature ultimately referred HJR 1004 and 1007 of 2009 to the voters for consideration. The referred amendments will be on the statewide ballot in 2010.

Look for the complete Policies and Goals 2009-2010 to be included as an insert in the August issue of City & Town.

Fort Smith Vice Mayor Gary Campbell accepts the presidency of the League for 2009/2010.

New officers elected

Outgoing League President JoAnne Bush, mayor of Lake Village, introduced the League's new officers, elected by their peers, at the 75th Convention's closing awards luncheon on June 19.

The new officers are: President, Vice Mayor Gary Campbell of Fort Smith; First Vice President, Alderman Murry Witcher of North Little Rock; District 1 Vice President, Mayor Marianne Maynard of Stuttgart; District 2 Vice President, Alderman Reddie Ray of Jacksonville; District 3 Vice President, Mayor Bob Freeman of Van Buren; and District 4 Vice President, Mayor Scott McCormick of Crossett.

As new League president, Campbell pledged to continue the organization's efforts to work for good legislation and defeat legislation detrimental to cities and towns. With unprecedented economic challenges facing municipalities, he urged delegates to be proactive in finding local solutions rather than simply "reacting to items on the agenda." To that end, Campbell endorsed Gov. Beebe's efforts to create in Arkansas a better, more educated workforce, and encouraged city leaders to remember, "Students are our citizens too."

To take full advantage of federal stimulus efforts will take regional cooperation, Campbell said, which he compared to hiking in bear country.

"You have to get together and make yourselves look bigger than the bear."

NLC offers federal stimulus advice

From money for infrastructure, to public safety, to community health, to housing, federal stimulus dollars from the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act have begun to flow to the states. To help cities and towns take advantage of this funding, the National League of Cities (NLC) is working to keep municipalities abreast of the opportunities, the NLC's Leslie Wollack told the Convention. Wollack is the NLC's principal legislative counsel and focuses on federal relations.

Over the next several years, more than $780 billion is set to come from the federal government, most of it channeled through existing programs, Wollack said. Keep in mind too, she told Arkansas city leaders, that the focus of the stimulus program is job creation. Transparency and accountability are also goals of the program, and the administration has set up a Web site, Recovery.gov, to share information about how stimulus money is being spent and the rules and regulations governing the funds.

The NLC has created several online services aimed specifically at the nation's municipal leaders, Wollack said, to help them keep track of all these new funds "coming from all these different spigots." One major project the NLC offers, she said, is a series of "webcasts" on NLCTV.org covering major recovery funding issues. The archived episodes are available. Other resources are available through the site www.nlc.org to help municipal leaders, Wollack added.

Several questions about funding for local transportation projects arose during a question-and-answer session with Wollack, and her first advice about this hot topic was to check with the state highway department, as the funds would be coming through them.

In most cases, Wollack said, the utilization of existing programs is working well, but in the case of transportation, it has highlighted some major problems from the NLC's perspective with the current transportation funding system. For instance, it is now well-known that local projects requesting stimulus dollars must be so-called "shovel-ready" projects, but many communities need assistance simply to become shovel-ready. The NLC is working on the issue, Wollack said. She urged all city leaders to speak to their Congressmen about the need for more adequate transportation funding.

League finances stable after good year

HOT SPRINGS—Despite an unstable economy, League finances and optional programs remain stable, and for the fifth year in a row, League membership is at 100 percent, Executive Director Don Zimmerman announced June 19 at the annual business meeting, held the final day of the 75th Convention. All of the state's 500 cities and towns are members of the League. This year also saw the League finish a large building project at League headquarters and add two new optional programs.

The Municipal Legal Defense Program has 420 members—three more than last year—and has about 150 ongoing cases. The Municipal League Workers' Compensation Trust has 484 members—one less than last year.

The Municipal Health Benefit Fund, with 191 members, had a particularly strong year, Zimmerman said, despite losing two member cities. Several cities that left the program in recent years are considering a return, he said.

The Municipal Vehicle Program has 385 members—one less than last year. The Municipal Property Program has 251 members—two more than last year. The Accidental Death and Dis-memberment Program has 173 members—two less than last year. The Firefighters Supplemental Income Plan has 255 members—four less than last year.

The Cash and Pension Management Trusts have 35 members—the same as last year. The Non-CDL drug testing program has 92 members—six more than last year. The Deferred Compensation program has 43 members—the same as last year. The League's Ordinance Codification Service is up five members this year to 104.

Five municipalities—Bryant, Bull Shoals, Highland, Lake Village and Oppelo—participate in all 10 League optional programs. Three member municipalities—Jennette, McCaskill and Midway—do not participate in any optional program.

Zimmerman encouraged city and town leaders to participate in two new League programs implemented in 2009. The Defensive Driving Program is designed to improve driving safety for members of the Municipal Vehicle Program through the use of a state-of-the-art driving simulator, located at the League's North Little Rock headquarters. The new Healthy Workplace Planning Program is designed to improve the health and overall quality of life for qualifying member cities and towns. For additional information on both of these new programs, contact David Baxter at 501-374-3484 Ext. 110.

Zimmerman praised the work of outgoing League President JoAnne Bush, mayor of Lake Village, for her efforts during the year.

"Lake Village is a beautiful city and it has a beautiful mayor," Zimmerman said. "She does a wonderful job for her city and her area of the state. She has been so responsive to whatever the League has needed this year."

The Executive Committee, boards and advisory councils had a busy year preparing for the 2009 legislative session and did a great job, Zimmerman said.

Workshops cover array of municipal issues

HOT SPRINGS—The 18 concurrent workshops at the 75th Convention offered delegates a chance to discuss a broad range of issues facing municipalities with their fellow city and town leaders and experts in a variety of fields. From preparing for a legislative audit to sustainable growth, the workshops covered the ways some cities are tackling the challenges facing them.

Several new laws affecting city employees in the Local Police and Fire Retirement System (LOPFI), the Arkansas Public Employees Retirement System (APERS) and the Pension Review Board (PRB) were passed during the 87th General Assembly this year, and the workshop “Public Pension Programs” helped attendees make sense of the changes. As of July 1, LOPFI’s rates have changed. Contributory rates are now 8½ percent and non-contributory rates are 2½ percent. APERS and LOPFI have reciprocity. They will work together for retirement if you are a member of both, but you must retire from both simultaneously to receive full benefits.

Legislative changes for APERS and LOPFI are outlined on each of the system’s Web site. Visit LOPFI online at www.lopfi-prb.com. At APERS’ online home, www.apers.org, click on “Legislation.”

In the workshop “Preparing for a Legislative Audit and Ways to Save Municipal Dollars,” several cities shared ways they are tightening their belts. Arkadelphia has inspected its buildings for reducing electrical services. The city is looking into converting some older public vehicles to natural gas power, and in the future plans to purchase hybrid vehicles to save fuel. To save on healthcare costs, Arkadelphia is emphasizing employee wellness and illness prevention.

To cut back on fuel use, Bono has purchased a scooter that gets 100 miles per gallon. City employees use it for tasks such as meter readings, post office runs and other local transportation needs.

Creating a more environmentally friendly city is a major step toward saving money and natural resources, and both Fayetteville and Little Rock are among cities that have made gains in this area in recent years. Fayetteville recently created a full-time position for John Coleman, the city’s new sustainability coordinator. In Little Rock, Sustainability Coordinator April Ambrose is busy finding ways to make the capitol city a green leader in the region. Just a few of their efforts include retrofitting traffic lights with LEDs, utilizing solar panels and installing light-reflecting roofing on public buildings.

League honors cities, officials for service to municipalities

HOT SPRINGS—The Municipal League honored municipalities and city and state leaders for their commitment to municipal issues at the League's 75th Convention, June 17-19 in Hot Springs.

The League named Arkansas Rep. Tommy Baker of Osceola and Rep. Bruce Maloch of Magnolia co-recipients of its Person of the Year award for their strong support of cities and towns during the 87th General Assembly of the Arkansas Legislature.

Maloch, who in 2007 was a recipient of the League's Distinguished Legislator award, was instrumental as chairman of the Joint Budget Committee in seeing that cities and counties received $3 million in additional turnback from the State General Improvement Fund. He also worked to obtain additional street aid revenue from the state Highway Department. Further, he guarded state and local sales tax revenue against harmful rebates and exemptions. Maloch also championed the League's proposal to have the Legislature refer to the voters HJR 1003, which would amend the Arkansas Constitution to eliminate municipal bond interest rate limitations.

Baker, a former Osceola alderman, is a former League president and as chairman of the House City, County and Local Affairs Committee made sure that every bill that came before the committee received a fair hearing. He also sponsored several key pieces of the League's legislative package, including Acts 161, 274, 417 and 503.

The League named recently retired, longtime Jacksonville Mayor Tommy Swaim its John Woodruff City Above Self Award winner. The award is named for the League's former communications coordinator and editor of City & Town. Before his death in 2007, Woodruff worked tirelessly for Arkansas's cities and towns. His widow, Diane Woodruff, presented the award.

The Arkansas City Clerks, Records and Treasurers Association named Texarkana City Clerk Patti Scott Grey its Municipal Clerk of the Year for her contributions to the profession and dedication to her community.

The Arkansas City Attorneys Association awarded Arkansas Attorney General Dustin Mc-

Daniel the Glenn G. Zimmerman Award for outstanding contributions to municipal law. Zimmerman was director of the League from 1942 until his death in 1974 and a former city attorney.

Fourteen city officials this year received the Adrian L. White Municipal Leadership Award. The award is presented to city officials who have served with distinction and dedication to their cities and the League's boards, councils and committees for six years. The recipients are Anthonyville Mayor Leroy Wright Sr., Arkadelphia City Director James Calhoun, Arkadelphia City Manager Jimmy Bolt, Ashdown Alderman Shirley Jackson, DeWitt Mayor Aubrey McGhee, Hope City Manager Catherine Cook, Jacksonville Alderman Reddie Ray, Jacksonville Alderman Marshall Smith, Jericho Mayor Helen Adams, Nashville Alderman Jackie Harwell, Nashville Alderman Vivian Wright, Newport Clerk/Treasurer Linda Treadway, Russellville Alderman Robert Wiley and Sherwood Mayor Virginia Hillman.

The Marvin L. Vinson Commitment to Excellence Award, named for the Clarksville mayor who served from 1983 until his death in 2001 and was League president in 1992-93, went this year to eight municipal officials who have served their cities and the League for 12 years. The recipients are Ash Flat Recorder/Treasurer Charlotte Goodwin, Bay Alderman Larry Hall, Camden Mayor Chris Claybaker, Chidester Mayor Bobby Box Sr., Clarksville Clerk/Treasurer Barbara Blackard, Earle Alderman Jimmie Barham, Jacksonville Alderman Kenny Elliott and North Little Rock Alderman Murry Witcher.

Forty-one city officials and employees this year received the Jack R. Rhodes Sr. Distinguished Service Award for 25 years of service to their communities. The recipients are Clarksville Police Lieutenant Paul Harmon, Little Rock Police Officer Michael Adkins, Little Rock Office Assistant I Barbara Barbee, Little Rock Fire Captain Clarence Barr, Little Rock Facility Supervisor Edwin Baxley, Little Rock Solid Waste Collection Foreman Marvin Benton, Little Rock Fire Apparatus Engineer Kelvin Brown, Little

Coach to improve job performance

Understanding the reasons for poor job performance can help a manager be proactive rather than reactive when problems arise.

By Melanie Kennon, Ed.D., guest writer

As Human resource professionals, we often focus our energies on recruiting talent, coordinating employee files and paperwork deadlines, and legal compliance. We juggle performance review files when annual raises are due, and we spend the next month or so reminding supervisors to complete them so that payroll deadlines can be met.

And so the performance review cycle goes. In many agencies these reviews are developed in a vacuum rather than with employee input and joint goal setting, and thus the ritual can become fairly meaningless. Typically, the conversations we have with employees who are not performing up to standards are reactive in nature and uncomfortable. But what if we began to be proactive about performance management? What if we set the example for the critical coaching conversations that improve performance and solidify employee retention? To begin, we must first understand poor performance and our responsibility in improving it.

There are five basic reasons why employees do not perform well.

Reason 1: Lack of skills

This is an employer responsibility. After all, you hired the best person for the job, right? The key questions we must ask are whether the employee ever had the skills, just needs practice or additional training, or if they have the skills but are unable to apply them in a new situation. Either way, the employer benefits from providing the employee with the training to get the job done.

Reason 2: Lack of information

This is also an employer responsibility. Has management communicated clear expectations for job performance and does the employee understand those expectations and the consequences of poor performance? Is the job description clearly written and honored by the employee's supervisor? Does the employee have current information to get the job done, or is the employee operating under the assumption that "we've always done it this way?"

Reason 3: Environmental issues

Does the employee have adequate resources to be successful? Are faulty processes in place? Have unrealistic standards been set? Have you inadvertently set the employee up to fail? Is the work culture one that nurtures growth and professional development, respecting diverse contributions of its workers? Or, is it an environment where bullying, disrespect and a lack of trust are the norm?

Reason 4: Motivational problems

The employee and employer share jointly in the resolution of these concerns. They require mutual understanding and communication. Motivational issues may come from a poor job fit, from the employee feeling that his or her contributions are underappreciated, or from working in a hostile environment where the work feels punishing. It can come from personal attitudes about the work or from negative actions and words of employers and managers. As the human resource professional, it is your job to make sure that the problem does not lie in the workplace environment or the bad behavior of those charged with directing the work of others. Using the proverbial stick to beat up on an employee who is performing poorly usually doesn't bring positive results. One of the worst things an employer can do is threaten an employee with the loss of his or her job. This tends to bring out the "fight or flight" instinct in an employee, which decreases the energy and focus that might have otherwise been spent on performance improvement.

Reason 5: Personal employee issues

This category is squarely under the employee's control. Substance abuse, lifestyle changes, divorce, death of a loved one, and physical, mental and emotional health concerns can severely impact work quality. While it is ultimately up to the employee to take charge of these problems, frequently they will turn to the human resource manager for support in managing these difficult personal issues. Employers who do not invest in the well being of their employees can exacerbate the situation. Managers can provide support by referring the employee to professional employee assistance programs.

Once we have determined what strategy will be most effective to improve performance, we must help supervisors and managers prepare for those critical coaching conversations. Conducting honest, respectful reviews of performance is not always an easy task. Preparation for the coaching session is critical. Determine your objectives for the discussion. Put the employee at ease by being open and using positive body language. Define the reason for the discussion.

Focusing on the behaviors—positive and negative—that should be addressed. Do not attack the person with demeaning comments. Ask for input from the employee. Express your concerns about any area of performance you feel needs improvement, but also remember to discuss those areas in which they excel. Don't fail to notice efforts towards improvement. Giving effective coaching feedback that motivates others towards excellence is a leadership skill, one that needs patience and practice. It is a skill that benefits everyone—the employees, the team and you.

Maximize Your Benefit.

Join the Municipal Health Benefit Fund

Approximately 90 percent of the municipalities across Arkansas that offer employees and officials medical benefits have joined the Municipal Health Benefit Fund and receive $2,000,000 major medical coverage with stop-loss, employee life, accidental death and dismemberment, dependent life, dental and vision coverages.

For 2009, new additions to the Municipal Health Benefit Fund are:

- Wellness benefits for all covered adults
- Well baby care
- Increases or eliminations of caps on organ transplants, pharmaceuticals, newborn babies and annual benefits
- Additional dental and orthodontic benefits

The Municipal Health Benefit Fund provides quality health protection for your officials and employees at a reasonable rate.

Tenant User Liability Insurance Program

Does your city allow private use of its facilities? Give your city extra peace of mind by offering TULIP liability coverage!

By offering TULIP, your city helps individuals and groups protect themselves and their guests—and the city gets an extra layer of protection against loss.

This program is sponsored by these organizations:

National League of Cities

Why should your city offer coverage through TULIP?

Many cities allow individuals and groups to use or rent municipal-owned facilities. When someone is injured at one of those events, they may sue the city and the event organizer. Dealing with claims, regardless of their merit, can be expensive and time-consuming.

When individuals purchase TULIP coverage for their event, your city is automatically named as an additional insured on the policy. This gives added assurance that your city will be protected from claims arising from an event held on city property.

What does TULIP cover?

Coverage up to $1 million in protection is available for many types of events including:

- Receptions
- Reunions
- Festivals
- Concerts
- Job fairs
- Weddings
- Clubs & Meetings
- Arts & Craft Fairs
- Many more!

Liquor liability coverage also is available.

How does TULIP work?

Individuals purchase coverage online from HUB International through the Entertainment Brokers International (EBI) website.

After event information is entered into the secure web site, an instant quote is generated, and the policy can be purchased with a credit card.

Costs are based upon the event type, number of people, level of risk, length of the event, special requirements and amount of coverage needed.

A certificate of insurance is sent to the purchaser and the city via email.

Individuals and groups who use city property are often unaware that they can be held legally and financially responsible for injury, accidents and property damage resulting from their event. TULIP keeps them protected.

For more information, contact Whitnee Bullerwell.

Municipal Property Program

Your Municipal Property Program offers broad coverage for your municipal property. The limits of coverage are $50 million per occurrence per member for damages from fire, windstorm and other incidents in excess of $5,000.

Coverage is $15 million per occurrence per member for losses exceeding $100,000 on earthquakes and flooding.

The Municipal Property Program's 2008 annual meeting in November adopted rates according to the following scale for 2009. See the new reduced rates below.

FIRE CLASS I	—	.0012	X	covered value	=	Premium
FIRE CLASS II	—	.00135	X	covered value	=	Premium

Does your community shine? Tell us about it!

Keep Arkansas Beautiful is honoring communities that are helping keep Arkansas clean and green again this year with the 2009 Arkansas Shine Awards. Across the state, cities and towns are showing their commitment to community improvement and economic development through litter reduction, recycling and beautification. Recognize your community's efforts by entering to win!

Keep Arkansas Beautiful will recognize one Arkansas community in each of six categories based on population. Each winner will receive the specially designed award at a local ceremony. The entry deadline is July 31, so log on to KeepArkansasBeautiful.com or call 888-742-8701 (toll-free) today for more information and to nominate your community.

Municipal Notes

Good Roads membership extended to all Arkansas mayors

The League Executive Committee at its June 29 meeting elected to provide a two-year Arkansas Good Roads Transportation Council (AGRTC) membership for all Arkansas mayors. As members of the AGRTC, mayors will join the Council's approximately 1,000 members in promoting its mission to gather and disseminate information to educate the public on the importance and value of a modern, safe highway system that is adequately financed through dedicated funding sources and to provide for economic growth in the state.

As AGRTC members, mayors will receive a quarterly magazine, periodic mail-outs on pertinent information and invitations to semi-annual board and general membership meetings. The two-year membership began in June and will run through June 2011.

The League encourages all mayors to call the AGRTC office to become workgroup members, which are members called upon to gather when issues need statewide and member attention. For further membership information, contact AGRTC Director Johnnie Bolin at 501-375-8566, or e-mail argoodroads1@sbcglobal.net.

IIMC accepting scholarship applications

The International Institute of Municipal Clerks (IIMC) invites member clerks, recorders and treasurers to submit applications for scholarship assistance. Three types of scholarships are offered:

- Certified Municipal Clerk (CMC)
- Master Municipal Clerk (MMC)
- IIMC Distance Learning Programs

The IIMC Distance Learning Programs scholarship is for clerks whose municipalities have a population under 15,000 as of the 2000 Census.

For an application please visit www.iimc.com. Completed applications for IIMC Distance Learning Programs must be postmarked by October 12. The deadline for CMC and MMC scholarships is Jan. 4, 2010.

The IIMC scholarships are in addition to those offered by the Arkansas City Clerks, Recordors and Treasurers Association. For more information, contact Paragould City Clerk Judy Reddick, CMC, at 870-239-7500, or e-mail judy.reddick@paragouldcity.org.

AGFOA Conference set for July

The Arkansas Government Finance Officers Association (AGFOA) will hold its 2009 Conference July 29-31 at the Fort Smith Convention Center. For registration information, e-mail AGFOA Secretary/Treasurer and Lake Village CFO Linda Bawcom at lvco@cei.net.

Founded in 1906, the AGFOA is Arkansas's chapter of the national professional association of state, provincial and local finance officers, dedicated to the sound management of government financial resources. For more information, visit the AGFOA Web site, www.agfoa.org.

The NLC Prescription Discount Card program enables participating cities to help residents who are without health insurance, a traditional pharmacy benefit plan or have prescriptions not covered by insurance by providing an average of 20 to 25 percent off the full retail cost of prescription medication.

More than 100 cities currently participate in the program nationwide, from Saint Agatha, Maine (population 802) to San Jose, Calif. (population 900,000-plus), and more than 100 cities are in the process of implementing the program. As of May 31, four Arkansas cities have implemented the program, including Helena-West Helena, North Little Rock, Pea Ridge and Texarkana.

There is no direct cost to participate in the program. The role of the city is to promote the program through the local media and to make the discount cards available at locations throughout the city to residents who would benefit from the program. The city is provided with a quantity of customized prescription discount cards with the city name and logo at no cost, along with sample marketing materials.

The program is administered for the NLC by CVS Caremark and includes nearly 60,000 participating pharmacies nationwide, including all major chains and most local pharmacies. To locate pharmacies in your city that participate in the program, visit www.caremark.com/nlc.

Each month, participating cities receive a report on the use of the discount card so the city can see the direct impact of the program locally.

Clarksburg, W.Va., was one of the first cities to join the program.

"In the first four months of the program, the city of Clarksburg (population 16,743) has saved its residents over $25,000 on the cost of their prescription drugs," said James Hunt, Clarksburg alderman and former NLC president. "By using the discount card, residents saved an average of $11.60 off the retail prices of their prescriptions."

For more information on the NLC Prescription Discount Card program, contact Marc Shapiro at 202-626-3019, e-mail shapiro@nlc.org, or visit www.nlc.org/prescriptioncard.

Summaries of attorney general opinions

Recent opinions that affect municipal government in Arkansas

From the Office of Attorney General Dustin McDaniel

City and county jail cost responsibilities reviewed

Opinion: 2009-043

Requestor: Bookout, Paul—State Senator

Your restated questions are as follows: How long must a person arrested by a municipal police officer for a city ordinance violation or a state misdemeanor and taken to the county jail remain incarcerated before the city becomes liable for paying the county the daily fee for keeping prisoners under ACA 12-41-506? Q2) How is it determined whether the expenses on which a county's daily fee for keeping prisoners is based are "reasonable" for purposes of ACA 12-41-506(a)(2)? Q3) If "reasonable expenses" are based on operating expenses, what recourse does a municipality have if it believes that the county jail housing municipal prisoners is being operated inefficiently thus raising the county's daily fee for keeping prisoners arbitrarily? Q4) At what point does a city housing prisoners in the county jail become liable to the county for the daily fee for a particular prisoner: when the prisoner is first incarcerated, when the prisoner is charged, or when the prisoner is convicted and sentenced? Q5) If a person is arrested and delivered to the county jail by a municipal police officer for an offense that constitutes a felony under Arkansas law, does the city have any liability to the county for that prisoner? Q6) Is a city liable for any additional time served by municipal prisoners housed in county jails due to related charges not brought by the city (e.g., contempt of court, violation of probation, non-payment of fines, etc.)? Q7) If a person is arrested by a municipal police officer for a city ordinance violation or misdemeanor and taken to the county jail where it is discovered that there is an outstanding warrant for that person's arrest, either from that county, another county or another city, which entity is responsible for paying the daily fee for that prisoner? Are the expenses shared? Q8) Can the sheriff or his representative refuse to accept custody of a person lawfully arrested by a municipal police officer from a city within the sheriff's county? Q9) In light of ACA 12-41-506(d), can the sheriff refuse to accept custody of a municipal prisoner from a city within his county if he is housing inmates from other counties at the time? Q10) Once the county accepts custody of a municipal prisoner such that the city will be charged the county's daily fee for said prisoner, who is responsible for transporting that prisoner to court appearances? Who is responsible for providing security if such prisoner requires an extended hospitalization? Q11) What information should appear on the monthly bill sent by the sheriff, pursuant to ACA 12-41-506(c)(1) to cities housing prisoners in the county jail? Q12) May a city and a county enter into an agreement where the county houses the city's prisoners for a flat monthly rate? May the county charge other cities a different rate, either daily or monthly? Q13) May the county charge one city within the county for daily inmate fees while waiving such fees for another municipality within the same county? RESPONSE: In response to restated question 1, it is my opinion that a city becomes liable to the county for the daily fee for a municipal prisoner as soon as the city's police officer delivers that prisoner to the county jail and into the sheriff's custody. It is my further opinion that the only fee that may be imposed is the full daily fee set by the county quorum court to be imposed once in each 24-hour period. In response to restated question 2, it is my opinion that whether the expenses used by the county in calculating the daily fee charged to cities for housing municipal prisoners are reasonable for purposes of ACA 12-41-506(a)(2) is ultimately a question of fact to be determined by a court of law. In response to restated question 3, it is my opinion that the recourse available to a city that does not wish to house its prisoners in a city jail but disagrees with the amount that it is being charged for keeping said prisoners in the county jail is twofold: first, the city could enter into an agreement with the county for a different amount pursuant to ACA 12-41-503(d); second, the city could attempt to have a court review the reasonableness of the daily fee. In response to restated question 4, it is my opinion that a city's liability to the county for the daily fee for a municipal prisoner begins when the prisoner is first incarcerated in the county jail, i.e., when they are delivered to the jail and the sheriff or his/her representative accepts custody. In response to restated question 5, it is my opinion that this office must return to its traditional definition of a municipal prisoner with respect to felony offenders in order to avoid troubling inconsistencies in logic that occur under some recent opinions on the topic. I therefore conclude that a city is liable to the county for a prisoner arrested by a city officer on felony charges until such time as the prisoner is formally charged. In response to restated question 6, it is my opinion that the most sensible approach is as follows: if the city is liable for the prisoner both pre- and post-sentencing because he or she has violated a municipal ordinance, then the city is also liable for any additional time served on charges stemming directly from the original charge. In response to restated question 7, it is my opinion that, in these situations, the entities must share the costs of incarceration. In response to restated question 8, it is my opinion that neither the sheriff nor his representative is permitted to refuse to accept such a prisoner unless that action is necessary to limit prisoner population in compliance with the law and constitution of this state and the United States Constitution. In response to restated question 9, it is my opinion that a sheriff may not refuse in-county municipal prisoners in order to house out of county inmates. In response to restated question 10, it is my opinion that once the sheriff or his representative accepts custody of a prisoner, the county is responsible for transporting that prisoner to court appearances and providing security if that prisoner requires hospitalization. In response to restated question 11, it is my opinion that the statute contemplates a monthly bill containing enough information so that a reasonable person of approximately average intelligence can understand both the amount of the charges and the reason for the charges. Whether any particular bill or billing format is sufficient in this regard is ultimately a question of fact. This office cannot serve as a finder of fact. In response to restated question 12, it is my opinion that a city and a county have the freedom to enter into an agreement where the county houses the city's prisoners for a flat monthly rate. Furthermore, it is my opinion that a county operating a jail may permissibly enter into a separate and distinct agreement for housing prisoners with each city that wishes to share its jail. However, to the extent your question asks whether the county quorum court may pass multiple daily fee ordinances in order to charge different daily fees to different cities, it is my opinion that the answer is "no." In response to restated question 13, it is my opinion that the answer to this question is "no."

Pensions have protections under state and federal law

Opinion: 2009-049

Requestor: Madison, Sue—State Senator

If the Fayetteville Firemen's Pension and Relief Fund Board takes action to reduce pension benefits to retirees, will that violate their rights protected under ACA 2, sec. 17 (impairment of contract)? Q2) If so, will members of the Pension Board and the City of Fayetteville be exposed to liability should a lawsuit be filed on behalf of any retiree? RESPONSE: Q1) It is unclear as an initial matter whether a court would reach the constitutional issue because the Board may lack authority to reduce benefits other than as authorized under the statutes. See ACA 24-11-807. Assuming a court reached the issue, however, the answer is likely "yes" regarding a reduction of benefits that were in effect when the members' rights became vested. It seems beyond question that a firemen's pension and relief fund established pursuant to ACA 24-11-801 et seq. gives rise to constitutionally protected contract rights. See 24-11-816; 24-11-818. The answer may be less clear regarding a reduction of any increase in benefits that occurred after the retirement rights became vested. Q2) The liability issue will probably depend upon the success of a complaint in federal court alleging violation of clearly established rights under the federal contracts clause (U.S. Const. art. I, sec. 10). Issues regarding liability are factually intensive, however, and require knowledge of the surrounding circumstances. These issues must therefore be addressed by the Board and the City with the aid of local counsel.

If county doesn't charge, municipalities won't pay under Act 209 of 2009

Opinion: 2009-059

Requestor: Laverty, Randy—State Senator

Boone County has only one jail and the county does not charge towns and cities in Boone County for housing prisoners. Is the intent of provisions of ACA 16-17-129, as amended by Act 209 of 2009, which allows for a levy to defray the cost of incarcerating city and county prisoners, that all town and city funds collected be paid to the county treasurer? Q2) If the answer to question one (1) is "yes," is it legal for a town or city to hold funds collected pending the possibility [that the city] may have to send an inmate to another county jail? RESPONSE: In response to your first question, it is my opinion that the statute in question does not require that the contents of the fund collected by towns and cities pursuant to its terms be paid to the county where the county does not charge towns and cities for keeping prisoners. In fact, for reasons set forth in greater detail below, it is my opinion that the statute does not permit such payment to the county under these circumstances. Moreover, in response to your second question, it is my opinion that, given the situation you describe, it would be appropriate for a city or town to hold any fines collected in the fund pending the possibility that one of its prisoners might be housed in the jail of a county that would actually charge the city or town for keeping said prisoner.

Municipalities may patrol Interstates within boundaries

Opinion: 2009-065

Requestor: Dunn, David—State Representative

Does the elected constable for the Wheatley Township have authority to patrol and issue traffic citations on portions of Interstate 40 within his township? RESPONSE: To more efficiently answer your question, I will break it into two separate questions: Can constables patrol portions of interstate highways within the boundaries of their townships? If so, can constables issue traffic citations on those highways? I believe the answer to both questions is “yes.”

Golf cart use in city very limited

Opinion: 2009-068

Requestor: Miller, Paul—State Senator

Is it permitted to operate golf carts on any streets within the city limits of a municipality as long as the golf cart is not driven on a federal or state highway? Q2) If the answer to question one (1) is “yes,” may the golf cart be driven to any destination within the city limits? Q3) If the answer to question one (1) is not an all-encompassing “yes,” what is the interpretation as to where golf carts may be operated within the city limits of an incorporated municipality? Q4) Does the AG interpret provisions of ACA 14-54-1410 as “the only route golf carts are authorized to be operated in a city and no other route of travel permitted?” Q5) Must specific equipment be installed on the golf cart in order for it to be operated on the roads and streets of a municipality? RESPONSE: In response to the questions you have posed, it is my opinion that golf carts may be operated on city streets from the owner’s residence to the golf course and back again if such operation is authorized by municipal ordinance (provided that the city streets in question are not also designed as federal or state highways or county roads). It is my further opinion that the law prohibits golf carts from being driven to any other destination within a city. I conclude that adding special equipment to a golf cart would make a difference in the applicability of the law only if the modification was so extensive that the resulting vehicle could no longer be termed a “golf cart.”

Cities can’t charge or exclude farmers’ market vendors on public property

Opinion: 2009-069

Requestor: Hopper, Karen S.—State Representative

(1) May a political subdivision—such as a city, county, or other public entity—charge vendors a fee to participate in a farmers’ market that is held on public property? (2) May a political subdivision—such as a city, county, or other public entity—exclude vendors residing in contiguous counties from participating in the farmers’ market? RESPONSE: In my opinion, the answer to both questions is “no.” Please see the body of the opinion for further details.

Driver under custody usually has no say in car’s towing

Opinion: 2009-084

Requestor: Ingram, Keith M.—State Representative

Is a vehicle owner who has been taken into custody by police entitled to a preference as to the towing of his or her vehicle under ACA 27-50-1207? RESPONSE: In my opinion, the answer to your question is generally “no.” Please see my predecessor’s response to the second question in the attached Ark. Op. Att’y Gen. No. 96-010, in which my predecessor addressed this precise question. As you can see, the “owner’s preference” only applies to disabled or inoperative vehicles.

Legislation becomes effective on 91st day after adjournment

Opinion: 2009-090

Requestor: Daniels, Charlie—Secretary of State

The 87th General Assembly adjourned sine die on May 1, 2009. What will be the effective date of legislation enacted during this session that did not carry an emergency clause or specified effective date? RESPONSE: July 31, 2009. (Starting with the first full day after adjournment, and counting ninety full days, acts with no emergency clause or specified effective date become effective on the ninety-first day.)

Catch the sustainability wave

Small steps cities and towns make today can contribute to a greener and more sustainable future.

By Jim von Tungeln

One of the newest concerns to float onto the radar screen of municipal government is the concept of sustainable development. Many experts rate the “green movement” one of the biggest challenges in our planet’s history. While some may not agree with the severity of that assessment, it is an issue that we cannot ignore.

As with any movement that gains popularity, its definition can elude us. One common one from the World Commission on Environment proposes that we “Meet the needs of the present without compromising the ability of the future generations to meet their own needs.”

This is a simple idea but one that could occupy legions of analysts charged with carrying it out. Even if they could agree on solutions, it would take mega fortunes to accomplish them. So where are we with this thing called sustainability?

We are recognizing that it is a worthwhile endeavor, for the triple bottom line of people, planet and profits. Cities are moving in the direction of a greener, or more sustainable world by different methods. Little Rock, for example, has established a Mayor’s Sustainability Commission—your humble author is a charter member. It is charged with analyzing problems, recommending solutions and monitoring progress. Fayetteville has created a full-time staff position charged with similar duties. Fayetteville Sustainability Coordinator John Coleman and April Ambrose, chair of Little Rock’s commission, conducted a workshop on the topic at the League Convention in June.

Some actions that sustainability coordinators will be considering may be as simple as educating the public on the benefits of recycling. They may be as complicated as reviewing settlement patterns and attempting to reduce commuting costs. They may involve ideas as easy to sell as promoting locally grown vegetables. They may involve ideas as controversial as prohibiting the washing of a car on a home driveway. They may even promote concepts that destroy long-held views of the propriety of “manly man things,” such as a recent decision by a city to convert its police cars to hybrids.

As you might be guessing by now, it’s not going to be easy. One of the first pitfalls lies in the “lip-service syndrome.” This involves jumping on the hot-button train but not really taking issues seriously once they become personal. For example, my profession’s organization—while claiming sustainable development as a major emphasis—recently rewarded Las Vegas by choosing it as the site of the association’s annual national convention. This is arguably the least sustainable city on the planet and certainly not one that should be validated by group of planners. Go figure.

Another pitfall is what my college girlfriend called the “elephant giving birth to an ant syndrome.” She was referring (erroneously I believe) to the study of sociology. But the term looms to doom the whole sustainability movement if we don’t back up plans with resources.

A final trap is the vast amount of confusing—and sometimes contradictory—material floating around. There exists so much literature on sustainability that one has trouble knowing where to start.

But wait. A group of graduate students from the University of Arkansas at Little Rock’s College of Business recently published a good introduction to the topic. Under the direction of Nancy E. Landrum, Ph.D, they prepared The City of Little Rock Sustainability Assessment.

The report cites, among other facts, four factors that are impacting cities and creating a movement of so-called “Green Initiatives” across the country. These are (1) social forces, (2) political forces, (3) economic forces, and (4) competitive business forces. This indicates that the idea of sustainable development is not simply something that was dreamed up by starry-eyed planners in the back room. Rather, it results from a variety of forces not normally working in tandem.

The report is chock-full of data, terms, history, trends and analyses of sustainable efforts, and I recommend it for elected officials wishing to acquaint themselves with this complicated issue. A copy can be viewed or downloaded from the Web site www.sbnca.org, or there is a link on the first page of my company Web site.

And how does the Capital City fare in the assessment? Quite decently, I would say, with room for improvements. So our commission is continuing our work. One of our plans involves a Municipal Sustainability Summit to be held Sept. 26 in Little Rock. We are inviting municipal representatives from all over, and it would be a great opportunity for your city to share and learn. See the inset for more details.

Perhaps this mere scratching of the surface will interest you in bringing your community into the green era. The work isn't limited to large cities. The small Arkansas community of Bono recently provided its utility meter reader a scooter to use in lieu of an expensive vehicle. That's a fine example and, admittedly, a small step.

But we must remember that it has been 200 years of small steps that got us where we are today. That is in the terrifying position in which the rest of the developed and developing

Publications share ideas that work

Looking for new and innovative ideas for things like fundraisers, adoption projects, spay/neuter education and more? The hundreds of ideas presented in two new publications may inspire you.

By Julia Coulter

If you or someone in your organization has a talent for coming up with new and exciting ideas, then you are truly blessed. Please call me! If, unfortunately, you are rather like me (who admittedly has absolutely no clue and couldn't come up with a new idea, even if a raise depended on it) then, like me, you probably need some help.

The ASPCA and the American Humane Association have produced two manuscripts that provide idea generating help for the helpless. Their two publications, 101 Great Shelter Ideas and 101 More Shelter Ideas, are full of proven strategies that have worked for other animal organizations, from fundraising and donation ideas, to animal adoption promotion strategies.

For example, the Pet Animal Welfare Society (PAWS) in Norwalk, Conn., has a group of local walkers and runners called "Team Paws." The group participates in local road races of varying distances to raise funds for the group's spay/neuter program by accepting personal pledges from the walkers for each event.

The Dubuque Humane Society in Iowa has a "Good Friends, Good Cause" program that partners with their local car dealership to raise funds and animal food for their organization via discounts on the final price of a vehicle for donations of cat or dog food, and a $100 donation to the Humane Society for each vehicle sold. What a great idea!

Another great idea is "Pennies for Pooches," sponsored by the Animal Welfare League of Chicago Ridge, Ill. Local schools participate in collecting spare change over the course of several months. Some classes hold events such as bake sales and car washes. The reward is that the Animal Welfare League brings some animals to the school for an ice cream party.

These are just a few of the many ideas in these two books. Some other inspiring ideas found in their pages are the "Borrow-A-Dog" program, the "Take a Shelter Animal to Lunch" program, as well as ideas to involve the local population like "Cat Massage Classes" (I did not make that up!) and "Spay your Mama" and "Looking for Love" programs.

If you need ideas, they have plenty. You can purchase the books for $15 each, or two for $25 at www.aspcaonlinestore.com under the Shelter Resources link, or if you have an account with www.Petfinder.com, you can download them via the library link in the Members area.

I'm thinking of implementing the "Cat Massage" idea.

Trees good for business

Research shows that not only do trees improve our quality of life, but also a vibrant urban forest improves the economic life of a community.

By John Slater

I had the opportunity in March to attend the Mississippi Urban Forestry Conference in Ridgeland, a community bordering Jackson. The Mississippi Urban Forestry Council has an excellent program and this year was no exception. Their speaker was a nationally known researcher, Dr. Kathleen Wolf, research social scientist, University of Washington, College of Forest Resources. I have seen her research over the years and used it in previous articles about the environmental social services that trees provide to people.

The city of Ridgeland, Miss., population 24,000, received its Tree City USA designation this year, and visiting there, it was easy to see why. There are street tree plantings, well landscaped businesses and companies and tree preservation areas. One of the preservation areas is part of the original Natchez Trace, the natural beauty and historic characteristics of which have been preserved. Ridgeland's Web site indicates they have several ordinances that pertain to trees. In their tree ordinance the statement of purpose reads:

The purpose of this ordinance is to promote the public health, safety and welfare of the citizens of Ridgeland and to enhance the economic, environmental and aesthetic qualities of the urban surroundings by preventing the unwarranted clear cutting of urban forest for the purpose of expediting development. The goal of this ordinance is to protect through preservation, to promote the establishment of and to maintain a 40 percent Urban Tree Canopy Cover in the City of Ridgeland.

In addition to their landscape ordinance, Ridgeland has an amendment to their subdivision ordinance regarding the amount of trees to be planted at residential homes. I like the amendment to their subdivision ordinance because it is short and sweet and requires tree preservation or tree planting at each residence. Check it out. It may be what you're looking for to improve your subdivision ordinance. Visit www.ridgelandms.org and click on city codes and ordinances.

"Trees in Business Districts: Positive Effects on Consumer Behavior!," by Kathleen Wolf, was based on several research studies funded by the U.S. Forest Service and National Urban and Community Forestry Advisory Council. What she found out was that "Trees are good for business!" Consumers who were surveyed responded positively to shopping environments having a healthy urban forest. American Forest, a national tree nonprofit, suggests a goal of 15 percent tree canopy cover in business districts. Most retail environments in the U.S. have 5 percent or less. Let's look at her research results:

Place perceptions

Participants were asked to rate three business districts. Districts that had street trees and other landscape improvements scored significantly higher in consumer ratings. Amenity and comfort ratings were about 80 percent higher for tree-lined sidewalks compared to a non-shaded street. Quality of products ratings were 30 percent higher in districts having trees over those with barren sidewalks. Interaction with merchants ratings were about 15 percent higher for districts with trees.

Patronage behavior

Respondents claimed they would be willing to pay more for parking in a well-landscaped business district. They would be willing to travel longer and further, have longer visits and more frequent visits in the districts having trees.

Surveys show that tree-lined shops such as the one above in Ridgeland, Miss., and in Hot Springs, opposite page, attract more shoppers than retailers whose properties are barren of attractive, shade-giving foliage.

Pricing patterns

Survey respondents were asked to specify a price for each of 15 items in a “basket of goods” in the business districts. The survey participants consistently priced goods significantly higher in landscaped districts! Prices were, on average, about 11 percent higher for products in the landscaped compared to the no-tree district.

Trees and greenery are Mother Nature’s stress reducers. They are drug free, I might add; they slow us down and relax us. People are happier, and the effect that trees provide spills over into to everything we do.

As Dr. Wolf says, it “helps create a ‘sense of peace.’”

To read more about Dr. Wolf’s research projects and sources, check out her Web site, www.naturewithin.info.

The next time you are making decisions on land use issues or implementing plans that can impact the trees in your community, remember that your urban forest plays a key role in the social benefits you provide for your citizens. As we deal with economic challenges, it’s important that we take advantage of all the strategies that are available, and, as research continues to show, trees are one of those resources.

Visit our Web site, www.arkansasforestry.org, to see if you qualify for the “Visiting Forester” grant program. This is an opportunity to have an urban forester visit your community and assess what needs to be done to improve it as well as developing tree boards and other programs that can help ensure its success.

Stay in the game without pain

Whether you participate in softball, tennis, running and bicycling, or maybe just work in the garden, proper exercise habits will help keep you pain-free.

By Jorge O. Rodriguez, M.D.

The last thing we want is for an injury to keep us off the field or in chronic pain. The good news is that we can avoid injuries just by taking a few common-sense steps. Below are some tips that can apply to almost any athlete, but especially if you're over 40.

Treadmill test

If you are planning to begin a vigorous exercise program, and you are over 40, I recommend (and so does the American College of Sports Medicine) that you have a treadmill exercising test to be sure your heart is healthy enough. Your primary care doctor will likely offer this service.

Key words: frequency, duration and intensity

If you're starting an exercise program, begin by slowly increasing frequency (days per week) over several weeks with low duration and intensity. Your goal should be to exercise at least five days a week. Then slowly add duration (time spent exercising) over three or four weeks before increasing the intensity of the exercise.

Warming up

Always make sure you get your muscles warm before stressing them. For example, before attempting to throw a baseball from right field to home plate, warm up for several minutes making short throws and slowly build up the velocity. This will help you avoid common shoulder injuries. The same is true for tennis players; the overhand serve puts similar stress on the shoulder. Start slow.

Stretching for power

There's much confusion among athletes about when to stretch. We learned growing up to stretch before exercising, and you see people doing that even today. But we now know that it's harmful to stretch cold muscles, and new studies have found that incorporating stretching as part of your cool-down is the most beneficial to your muscles.

At the end of your activity, your muscles are warm, so stretching won't tear the muscle fibers or tendons, and you're going to get a better, deeper stretch that gives you longer-lasting flexibility. You'll have longer muscle fibers that allow you to generate more power than muscles that are short and contracted. So rather than hitting the shower as soon as you're done, spend 10 minutes stretching the major muscle groups.

Pain in the knee

One of the most common problems I see is anterior knee pain, a kind of chronic, dull ache behind the kneecap. There's usually no ligament instability and no swelling, but it really hurts, often when sitting for long periods.

The solution may be as simple as changing footwear. The feet are at the bottom of the kinetic chain, so the right shoes can make all the difference in how our knees feel. First you need to know whether you have wear on the outside of your shoes or wear on the inside. You can tell by looking at your shoes or go to a good shoe store where a qualified salesperson should be able to help you. If your shoes wear on the inside, you'll need a good motion-control shoe. If you have flat feet or a high arch you'll want to be sure to get the appropriate orthotics.

Small communities at crossroads

Dedication to finding creative economic development solutions is the key to keeping Arkansas's small cities and towns viable.

By Chad Gallagher

Recently there has been much discussion in the public arena about the effectiveness and viability of small towns. At both the national and state level there has been discussion of closing towns, abandoning towns and cutting losses to merge communities into larger population centers in order to create an economy of scale. It is a hot topic and one that can stir a lot of fury, depending where you stand on the issue. It has been my experience that most of these discussions are beneficial because they require exploration, consideration and they typically lead to creative advancements.

In the course of Arkansas history, municipalities have on occasion, disbanded, died, merged with other municipalities or, in some cases, just faded away. Many places that once thrived because of a previous industry or the railroad or because of the lack of automobile transportation are now little more than a shadow of their former selves. Prior to the automobile and developed road systems, populations gathered around small, isolated areas of trade. The automobile and highways allowed populations to merge their trade centers. This change resulted in many ghost towns in Arkansas. Such change brings benefits and disadvantages, often determined by individual perspective.

There is no "one size fits all" solution for the future of small Arkansas municipalities. In reality, the current discussion should make everyone sit down at the table, begin to think a little and collaborate. There are some cities that in reality may no longer be able to serve their citizens effectively or must realize that time has washed away the city they once served. Each community must make an honest assessment as to its future course. All options should be on the table. The most important item for consideration is how to best serve. This is always the quest of true leadership. Solutions should certainly include broad levels of regional collaboration. Municipalities must utilize the strategic partnerships available to them in their region. These include nearby cities, educational institutions, corporations and other partners with a common interest in community advancement.

Above all, these challenging times call for creativity. Small cities can have extraordinary success, but it requires a vast amount of creativity, strategy, determination and diligence. Before we put up the out-of-business sign in all our small towns, we should look at the creative successes that emerge. Adversity either kills us or strengthens us. The current adversities of shifting economies, rural population decline and a changing tax base can either deal a death blow to the small town or, conversely, it can inspire creativity.

Creativity is the new bailout and stimulus package for small towns.

This will include developing a knowledge-based economy. Knowledge-based jobs can operate from anywhere in the world as long as the appropriate infrastructure exists. We're no longer talking just about roads to plants and industrial parks, but about broadband and T-1 Internet lines. Small communities must aggressively seek long-term partners. Don't be so afraid of losing autonomy that you fail to partner with others for the things you simply cannot achieve on your own. Communities can never again fly by the seat of their pants. Success rarely happens by chance. Small cities and towns must be strategic, deliberate, purposeful and thoughtful in their every action.

Cultivate local entrepreneurship. You are much more likely to get those from your community to stay and invest there than you are to recruit new industries. Small cities must create an environment of opportunity. Become a seedbed for small business development. In addition, communities must see quality of life as a true asset in the market place. Develop this trait and market it.

Singer John Mellencamp and I agree: There's just something special about a small town. Small towns have a quality that is not quantifiable and hardly understood until you've lived in one. Until you've enjoyed life there and gone through sorrows there, it is difficult to appreciate the simplicity and shared life in small cities and towns. The current discussion about viability is a valid one and it should be a wake-up call to small cities. This moment in the discussion offers the chance to inspire motivation to reevaluate and become the architect of a better tomorrow.

Play Day comes to Springdale

It is time to step up and recognize the value of play in our communities.

By Dr. Rick McWhorter

As a child, my neighborhood was known as a place where children met in a vacant lot and played all day long. Most of the games we played did not require any specific equipment or space. Some of those games included hide and seek, catch the flag, red rover, tag, hula hoop, tree climbing, kite flying and more games we've probably forgotten. The neighborhood children would meet early in the morning and play until late at night. Our parents had a hard time getting us to stop playing long enough to eat. We were all anxious to get outside and play with our friends.

Have those days been lost? Do the children in 2009 experience that same opportunity? If not, there is still time to instill the value of play in our children. It is the fear of some of the professionals in parks and recreation that the element of unstructured play is more difficult to see in our children. We have grown so accustomed to having organized sports and games that just going out to the open field to have some fun can be a lost art. As the city of Springdale researched the value of play and learned about the KaBoom organization and its emphasis on unstructured play, it became obvious that we needed to pursue becoming a Playful City USA community. As a result of diligent work by our Playful City Committee, our city council members and our city staff, Springdale became the first city in Arkansas to receive this designation.

One of the requirements for obtaining the KaBoom national recognition as a Playful City USA community is to provide a Play Day for children. Even though this appears to be a no-brainer, today's children miss opportunities to have unstructured play earlier generations may have experienced. Therefore, organizing a day for children to come out and play is extremely important for our youth.

Springdale will host its first community-wide Play Day Aug. 22. This event will involve several departments within the city, including the fire and police departments, animal services and the parks and recreation department. The major sponsors for this event are the Springdale Chamber of Commerce and the Jones Center for Families. The Playful City Committee composed of business leaders, government officials and interested citizens is organizing this Play Day.

This event will provide a variety of activities to ensure attendees will really enjoy the day. The Play Day will be held at Murphy Park in the heart of the city. Fun activities will begin at noon for children in kindergarten through fifth grades. Games played at old-time picnics will be part of this day and everyone will have a chance to experience other activities too. Concerts by local bands will begin at 5 p.m. The Springdale Aquatic Center will be open and free to the public from 7-9 p.m. To conclude the day of events, a movie in the park will be shown.

The events are planned to involve the entire family. It will be a fun-packed day like no other that has been offered in Springdale. The first 500 children to register on that day for this event will receive numerous coupons from businesses in the area. Also, the elementary school with the most attendees will receive a grand prize.

Volunteers from several of the school athletic teams as well as church groups will help lead the activities and play the games with the children. If you are in the Springdale area on Aug. 22, please come and join us for a day of fun at Murphy Park. This event will be free to everyone and we encourage your attendance. For more information concerning this event or how to become a Playful City USA community, contact the Springdale Parks and Recreation Department.

Dr. Rick McWhorter is the Director of Springdale Parks and Recreation.

Municipalities must publish semiannual financial statements

The time is rapidly arriving for the semiannual reporting of each city's financial statement. Refer to the 2007-2008 Handbook for Arkansas Municipal Officials, Section 14-59-116, pg. 615, and Section 14-237-113, pg. 872.

The first reference provides that the governing body of each municipality shall publish semiannually in a legal newspaper of general circulation in the municipality a FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE MUNICIPALITY by Sept. 1 covering the first six months (January through the end of June) of the current calendar year.

The financial statements should include the receipts and expenditures for the six-month period and also a statement of the indebtedness and financial condition of the municipality.

The latter law, 14-237-113, provides a similar publication requirement for the operating authority of the WATER and SEWER DEPARTMENTS. Water and sewer departments administered by one or two commissions must comply with the law. If the water and sewer departments are administered by the city council, then it is the responsibility of the city council to comply with Section 14-237-113.

Suggested Forms A, B and C follow. For additional information, call the League at 501-374-3484.

The suggested FORM A is for use by cities of the first class and second class to comply with 14-59-116.

County equalization boards to meet in August

County equalization boards will meet Aug. 1 through Oct. 1 to equalize (adjust an assessment or tax to create a rate uniform with another) the assessed value of all acreage lands, city and town lots, other real property and personal property. The boards will meet as often as necessary during this time to complete their work (ACA 26-27-309). If a county's ratio of assessed-to-market value is out of compliance, the equalization board may meet after Oct. 1, but no later than the third Monday in November (ACA 26-27-311).

County equalization boards have two responsibilities: (1) to review and equalize overall county assessments as assessed by the assessor, and (2) to hear assessment appeals by property owners. The board begins the review of assessments on Aug. 1, when the county assessor delivers the completed assessment records to the county clerk, who serves as the secretary for the board. Assessment appeals from land owners begin no later than the second Monday in August (ACA 26-27-317).

Cities and towns have a part to play in deciding who sits as a member of the county equalization board. Cities and towns select one member of a five-member board (counties with a population less than 75,000) and two members of a nine-member board (counties with a population greater than 75,000) (ACA 26-27-303 and -304).

To select county equalization board members, city and town representatives within the county shall hold a meeting during the month of May of each year in which the terms of any of the members of the county equalization board shall expire (ACA 26-27-304(b)(2)(A)). The mayor of the city or town or his or her designee shall serve as the representative of his or her city or town (Id.). The mayor of the county seat shall be the chair of the meeting, and if there are dual county seats, the mayor of the larger of the two seats shall be the chair of the meeting (Id.). Those at the meeting shall select the member of the board via majority vote, and each city or town shall be entitled to one vote (Id.). No action shall be taken unless a quorum is present. A majority of all of the representatives of all cities and incorporated towns in the county shall constitute a quorum (Id.).

Information for this article comes from Arkansas Property Tax Equalization and Appeal System, a publication of the Assessment Coordination Department. For more information, contact John Zimpel, legislative liaison, by phone at 501-324-9104 or by e-mail at john.zimpel@acd.state.ar.us.

Again in 2008, our firm led the state in successfully managing the largest percentage of tax-exempt issues. During this same period, we also completed a majority of the financial advisory transactions for local school districts*. And while 2008 was a good year, we understand it was possible because of the trust and confidence shown by our fellow Arkansans.

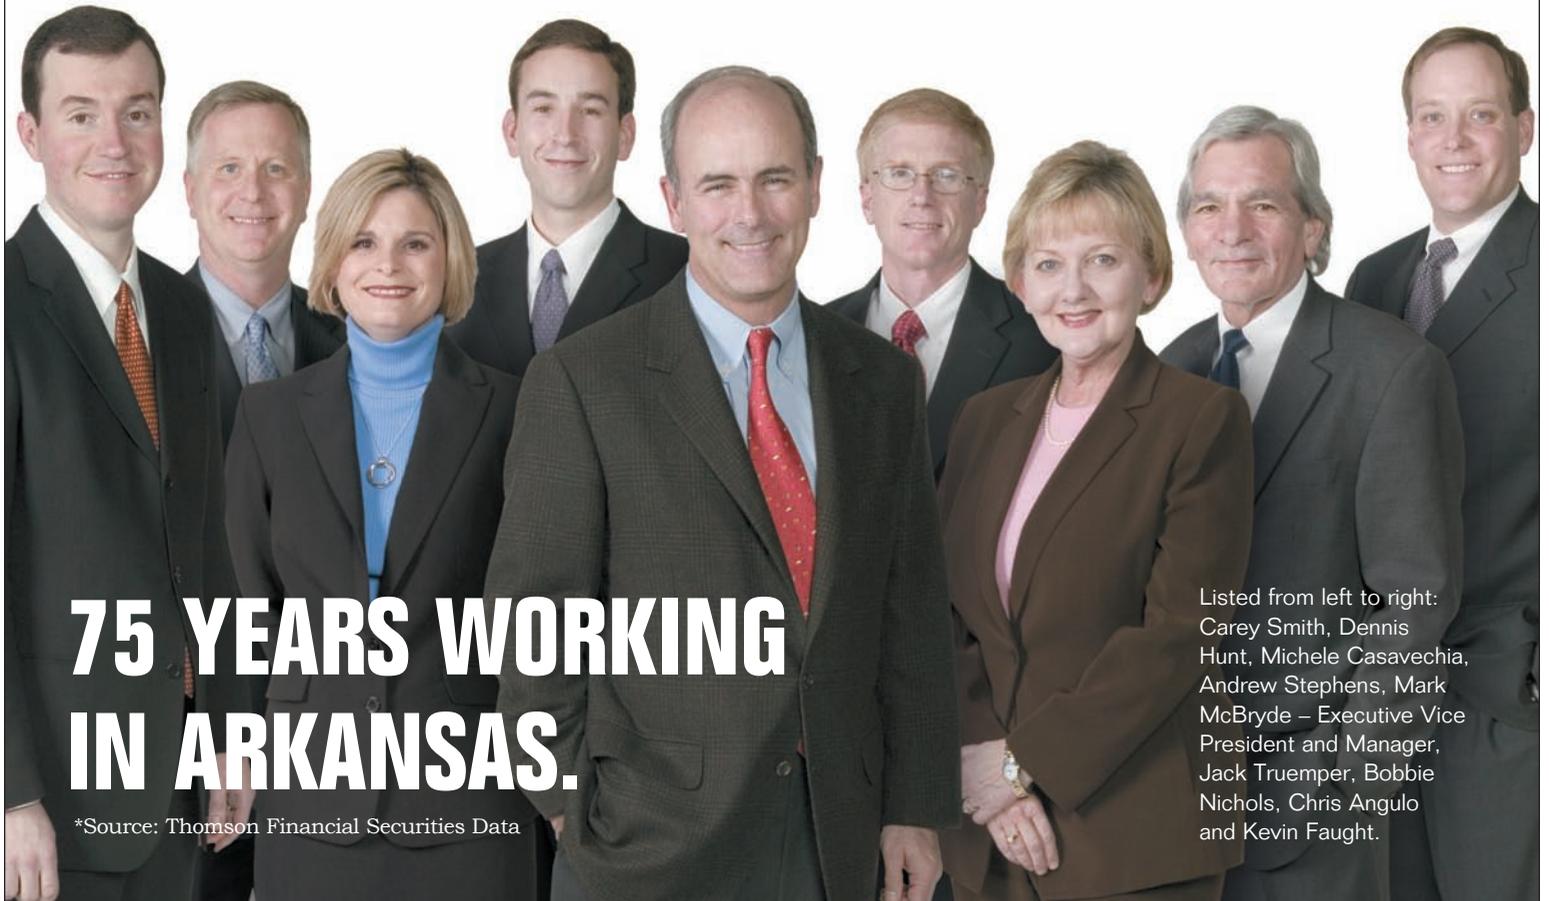

At Stephens, we are continually impressed with the talent, dedication and loyalty of the men and women who manage and operate Arkansas' municipalities, school districts, hospitals, colleges and universities, state agencies, counties, utility systems and other governmental and community organizations.

Over the past 75 years, Stephens Inc. has been the market leader in this state. Thank you, Arkansas, for your continued confidence in our capabilities. For more information, visit our website at stephens.com.
